ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This study could not have been completed and produced without the help of people. It is my great privilege to complete this research work under the regular and able guidance of respected Professor Dr. Puspa Raj Kandel, Central Department of Management, Tribhuvan University, Kirtipur. I wish to express my heartily gratitude to him for his inspiration, regular guidance, generous report, and support as well as unmatched patience that he had the best on me while the preparation of this thesis.

This study is conducting with the main aim of analyzing the contribution of customs duty in total government revenue collection structure of Nepal for ten years. I wish to express my heartily gratitude to Prof. Dr. Bal Krishna Shrestha, department head, Prof. Dr. Sunity Shrestha, chairman of research committee, Mr. Mukunda Pd. Rimal, administrator, and Mr. Rishi Raj Dawadi, chief administrator and all administrative body of this department for their co-operation as well.

I owe the special debt to my father Mr. Bharat Prasad Dhakal, my mother Samjhana Dhakal, my brother Kailash Dhakal, my sister-in-law Ganga Dhakal and my wife Radha Adhikari for their support, affection and encouragement in my whole study period. Similarly, I want to provide equal value to my faithful friend. Without their guidance, supports, and encouragement at every stage, this study could not have taken its present shape. I gratefully acknowledge the co-operation and support of those who have helped in data collection for this study.

It is very difficult to remember everyone who had a hand in helping out on this study. I would like to express my heartfelt apologies and thanks to all those whose names are missing here.

Finally, I hope this work could be useful for the research works in this similar field. I retain all responsibility for any kind of errors committed in this work.
