ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

At first, I would like to express my sincere thanks to the Central Department of Geography for providing me an opportunity to conduct research on Mountain People and their livestock Farming Practices (A Case study of Bharka and Khangsar VDC of Upper Manang).

I am profoundly indebted to my supervisor Prof. Dr. Bhim Prasad Subedi, Head of Central Department of Geography, for his inexhaustible support, valuable suggestions, encouragement and supervision in all stages of the study from the field work to the final accomplishment of the work. Moreover, I feel deep gratitude to all my respected teachers including Mr. Kanaiya Sapkota, Mr. Prem Sagar Chapagain for their co-operation and inspiration that remained invaluable in the completion of this work.

My few words of appreciation should also go to the people of the study area. Their willingness to share their experiences as well as to provide information required for the study was remarkable. Similarly, I am grateful to the Norwegian Council for Higher Education (NUFU) for providing financial support.

I am also deeply indebted to my colleagues Mr. Tilak, Tara, Shyam, Dol, Nim, Basant, Chhabi, Phanendra and all of the friends for their regular help and suggestions. Similarly I would like to thank especially friend Mr. Gopal Bhandari for his help. And I would like to thank to Mr. Rajiv Maharjan (Friends Computer Service) for his help in computerizing the manuscript.

I am greatly indebted to every one who offered their support in whatever way that enabled me to go through my studies and make this world a success.

Last but not least, how can I pass unsaying anything about my all - embracing parents and my family, those who despite their being unlettered never stopped encouraging and inspiring me on my pursuit of learning event at and hardship.
