CHAPTER – ONE

INTRODUCETION

1.1 Background of the Study

In common sense violence means, that is given to anybody such as torture, victim, sorrow and inhuman behaviours, which may be either physical or psychological violence reinforced due to the cause of blind faith, social discrimination (UNFPA, 2003 p. 2).

Domestic violence includes: physical, sexual, psychological aggression or coercion and is a pattern of behaviour employed by one person in a relationship to control another. The abuse is typically directed at women and girls and can create health. Social an economic costs for the individual, the family and the society. The violence also includes battering, burning, emotional blackmailing, mocking or ridicules, threat of abandonment, confinement to home, the withholding of money or other family support, an abusive relationship or have an abortion against her will or her partner may knowingly expose her to a sexually transmitted infection. Violence is any kind of oppression, coercion and cruelty against another being (SAATHI, 1997 p. 25).

In every society of Nepal, violence against girls and women is common. Basically, Nepal is a patriarchal value based country. Girls and women are recognized by their father, husband or son's name. They do not have their own identity and are not free in many more aspects. Each of the Nepalese girls and women is being violated at least once in their lifetime. Violence is common in all ages, castes, religious groups and social classes. Only its degree and forms may differ by society, ages and religious values (ibid p.29).

Girls and women are treated as second-class citizens. They are neglected in every aspects of their life too. Girls and women are neglected before their birth i.e. sex selective abortion. Most of the Nepalese parents prefer son to daughter. If any women give birth to a daughter, both mother and daughter get less care than she would have got in case she had a son. Likewise, female child is given less priority to go to school than male child, at least in the rural areas of the country. If the parents let go to school then usually female child goes to government school while the male child goes to private school (UNFPA, 2003 p. 12).

Girls and women are violence in many more forms i.e. child marriage, girls trafficking, sexual harassment, rape, forced marriage, marital rape, forced conception, domestic violence, dowry related violence etc. These all forms of violence minimize their human rights and reproductive rights.

Violence to girls and women done simply because they are female, because they are not valued as such or because they have misbehaved according to some norms of the predominantly patriarchal society. From before birth to old age girls and women are there by denied rights, tormented and even killed. Widespread attitudes towards girls and women as inferior, even as the property of men , systematic discrimination, traditional practices and acts in the name of religion, oppression by patriarchal institutions, indifference or collusion of the state all are involved in denying girls and women their human rights and fundamental freedoms and sometimes, their lives. Co-modification of women in the media and their economic marginalization in the global economy are traditional negative forces, along with politics that sometimes build male solidarity around the issue of controlling women.

Women empowerment and full participation are prerequisites for reaching major goals of the world community development, equality and peace. When, instead women and girls are targets of violence in its many forms, because they are female, their opportunities and rights ad human beings are denied, their participation in development limited. Gender violence affects women's and girls' lives , particularly in the home , women's and girls wellbeing , health and longevity are all at risk from extreme reflect and discrimination as well as physical and sexual violence and traditional practices. main cause of gender violence is the un equal power relation between women and men based on women's supposed inferiority and men's supposed superiority then cultural ideology and images can help reveal norms for women's and men's roles and their relationships. Violence against women exist various forms in everyday life in all societies. Women are beaten mutilated burned, sexually abused and rape (Kafle, 2002 p.16).

In the context of Nepal violence occurred every parts of the country across all caste, class, ethnicity, regions as well as religions. Nepal's have traditional cultural norms, values, system. So that various forms of traditional violence like polygamy, child marriage, preference, Deuki, Dhami, Jhankri, Boksi, etc. because of these factor women suffering from ancient to until now in our country. In Nepal women suffering from physical, sexual, psychological, dowry deaths, murder, killing, battering, beating, false acquisition, gender discrimination, honour killing as well as reproductive right violation not new event for Nepal. Nepalese women are confined only household chores, they are deprived from education, freedom, economic opportunity, as well as they are absence in decision making from household to the national level and policy formulation level of the bureaucracy of this state. According to SAATHI (2001) various legal documents are not support to the women, therefore women are victimize from different forms of violence in our country.

On the basis of study area women facing violence from their husband, mother-in-law, father-in-law, sister-in-law and other family members of the family. In this area physical, sexual, psychological, traditional forms of violence are faced by women. In this area women not having more higher education which is essential tools to reducing VAW. According to the respondents' opinion name of religion, oppression by patriarchal institutions, indifference or collusion of the state all are involved in denying girls and women their human rights and fundamental freedoms and sometimes, their lives. Commodification of women in the media and toyment, low status of women and economic dependency. Similarly, majority of the women facing violence act after alcoholing, gambling, drugs addicting etc. some women have been experiencing of miscarriage because of excessive beaten in the pregnancy period. Victims women state that violence can be prevented through providing information, improving women status, raising income level, income level, stop controlling alcohol, drugs using, gambling etc (SAATHI, 2001 p. 21).

Violence against girls and women is obstacle in the achievement of equal rights in household, society and country. Unequal division of right and resources creates debate and disturbs peace. Violence against women in the family stems from the concept of male superiority and power. In most countries, the male has been historically and traditionally considered the provider and more powerful figure, and that is the basis for the exercise of control over the female.

Domestic violence is undoubtedly the most prevalent form of violence against women and girls (VAW). If domestic violence is seen broadly any act of violence within the house, it includes differential treatment of girls, wife beating and abuse, torture of daughter-in-law and neglect and torment of widowed women in the family. The failure of perform prescribed duties (Male Frustration at his inability to provide for his family or the inability of a woman to run the household efficiently) by both men and women is a common cause of dominance of religion, oppression by patriarchal institutions, indifference or collusion of the state all are involved in denying girls and women their human rights and fundamental freedoms and sometimes, their lives. Co-modification of women in the media.

Violence against women and girls is emerging as a worldwide pandemic. Violence against women and girls hovers an ugly word: impunity. All too often men are able to get away with extreme violence against their wives, daughters and female neighbours. Violence in the family is supposedly a private affair, beyond the domain of the law. A girl child is regarded as worthless, much less than a boy in our society. Female Foeticide, child neglect and abuse, beating in the pregnancy period, incest and murder, dowry death, stove burning, honour killing, giving mental torture, sexual harassment trafficking of women, gender discrimination, polygamy, child marriage. Spousal battering, marital rape, traditional practices harmful to women like accusing as witches, forced prostitution etc. are common events faced by women in their daily life situation. Child and infant mortality, street children and child labour, uneducated children, sexual exploitation of children, HIV/AIDS, the list of problems where violence in the family, against women and girl, is likely factor is long. Violence also directly related to how children are nurtured, how they develop and what is the critical period in infancy and early childhood is considered as important (Ruth Finney Hayward, Breaking the Earthenware Jar).

Abused women also face higher risks of contracting HIV and other sexually transmitted infections. The physical consequences of female genital mutilation/ cutting include great name of religion, oppression by patriarchal institutions, indifference or collusion of the state all are involved in denying girls and women their human rights and fundamental freedoms and sometimes, their lives. Co-modification of women in the media and tinfections from the use of unsanitary tools, chronic pelvic inflammation and even death. Psychological effects include anxiety and depressed. VAW affects women of all class, poverty and lack of education are additional risk factors. Increasing educational level can help prevent violence by empowering young women. Quality education programmes can also serve as a vehicle for sensitizing young men to respect women's rights (Paudel, 2003 p. 23).

1.2 Statement of the Problems

Domestic violence is the serious problem, which is against the human rights and women's rights. It is the violation of women's human right, life, liberty and their fundamental freedom, development of full capacities and empowerment. Development as well as developed countries both are experiencing about the problems of domestic violence. Mostly these problems can be found in developing world where is several kinds of obstacles and scarcities such as lack of education, poverty, traditional superstition etc. This problem is recognized by the international community as a violation of human rights, rooted in women's subordinate status. Thousands of women bear domestic violence, sexual and psychological forms of abuse as well as harmful practices such as female genital mutilation / cutting that destroys the dignity and self esteem of the women. Now, globally women are affecting through spousal battering, sexual abuse, dowry related violence, rape, including marital rape, female genital mutilation, non spousal violence, sexual violence related to exploitation, sexual harassment and intimidation at work in school and elsewhere, trafficking in women and forced prostitution (Paudel, 2003 p. 25).

VAWG affect the full and equal participation of women in political, civil, economic, social and cultural life at the national, regional and international level. Gender based Women considered as second class citizens, denying them the right to own property, to travel freely and to gain access to economic and productive resource. Women frequently lack the power necessary to make basic decisions and informed choices about their own health and sexuality. Thus, domestic violence is burning issue today. It is the major obstruction to full and total development of the women.

Women have been experiencing many forms of problems due to violence. Regular occurring violence affects women as well as children's all sectors of life such as education, health and productive field Alcohol drinking, gambling as well as drugs taking habits of the husband directly affects of household economic sector that cause children dropout from the school and mismanagement of the family environment. Many women beaten during the pregnancy which is the main cause to miscarriage, stillbirth, abortions, fetal death etc (Paudel, 2003 p. 22).

On the one hand most of the women are suffering from mental disorders, anxiety, upset, psychosis, depression etc. On the other hand victims women suffering from physical disabilities, physical injuries, physical attack, etc. in the study area (Paudel, 2003 p. 23).

Therefore violence is challenging for women empowerment. So , that violence can be reduce through providing economic opportunity, education, self-employment training for women, controlling alcoholing, gambling etc.

Domestic violence also related to sexual abuse, sexual violence may involve physical and psychological intimidation, unwanted sexual advances or acts, date and marital rape and Women in Nepal live in an oppressive, backward and feudal environment which is cause by patriarchal values systems, unequal power relation and social religious, cultural norms and traditions. There fore women are rendered powerless, asset less, excluded and perceived as worthless. Likewise women are largely denied from education, legal civic, economic and individual identity rights. According to SAATHI, (1998) 34% of males and females get married before the age of 15 years. Most women's job is tedious household work and agricultural work. According to census 2001 only 8.9 % women are engaged in non-agricultural work. They do not earn cash money, their work is considered to be household work. Most women have to depend economically on their husband. This is also one of the major causes of domestic violence. Poverty, illiteracy, lack of job opportunities, lack of family planning practices, lack of women's education and awareness and liberty are the leading cause of domestic violence (SAATHI, 1998 p.25).

In conclusion violence against women is an obstacle to the achievement of the objectives of equality, development and peace. Violence against both violates and impairs or nullifies the enjoyment or their human rights and fundamental freedoms by women. The longstanding failure to protect and promote those rights and promote those rights and freedoms in cases of violence against women is a matter of concern to all states and should be addressed various kind of consequences may occurred due to the violence against women such as: Unwanted pregnancy, unsafe abortion and maternal mortality, miscarriage and still birth, delayed antenatal care, premature labour and child birth, foetal injury and low birth weight (ibid, p. 26). The research questions of the study are:

1. What is the knowledge and perception of violence against married women in Barahathawa?
2. What are the knowledge, remedy and way of prevention of violence against married women?
3. What is the situation of legal provision and reporting behavior of violence cases against married women?

1.3 Objectives of the Study

The main objective of the study is to assess domestic violence against married women. The specific objectives of the study are given below:

1. To assess the knowledge and perception of violence against married women by men
2. To examine the remedy and way of prevention of violence against married women
3. To examine the situation and legal provision to protect violence against married women.

1.4 Significance of the Study

In Nepalese context, thousands of married women are suffering from various forms of domestic violence at home due to lack of education, information and awareness. Patriarchal norms and value system enhance the rise of domestic violence. In our country, traditional type of violence like Dhimi, Jhankri, Boksi, Deuki, Jhuma, Dadini practices etc. are still existed in every where. due to poverty, uneducated, low level of awareness, many women in every parts of the country facing distinct forms of violence such as battering, wife beating, burning, acid attack, marital and psychological threatening, dowry killing , homeless conditions, property less, marital rape, reproductive rights violation etc.

There is immediate need of research underlying such serious crime to be reduce eliminate for the protection of human rights of women and empowering them to bring the main stream of development. There is no possibility of healthy family, community and nation without reducing violence against women. If there is dispute and quarrel between couples at home every day, that will ultimate affects children's psychological condition which is lasting harmful effects of his whole life. This research study is based on field survey. This report helps student or related area to prepare another report like dissertation. The students of the social sciences might find the report useful. It is expected that this study might generate useful information to students, project planners, policy makers, administrators and implementer as well as government and non-government organizations about different types of violence, its incidence and nature in the study area.

1.5 Organization of the Study

This study is divided in to six chapters. The first chapter is introductory chapter, the second chapter deals with the review of literature, third chapter presents the research methodology, which includes research design, nature of data, sampling techniques, tools and methods of data collection. The fourth chapter deals with the socio-economic and demographic structure of the study area. Chapter five entails domestic violence against women and it also describes types, causes, suggestions and solutions of domestic violence and chapter six summarizes the problems and makes recommendations. This research work also consists of alphabetical list of reference and appendices.

CHAPTER–TWO

LITERATURE REVIEW

Literature review is considered as a part of academic development where researchers become an expert for his own related field. Various types of books, articles, journals and reports available have been used in literature review to reach to the final conclusions.

2.1 Theoretical Literature Review

Nepal is a poor country and its patriarchal norms and values there are so many reasons, which cause violence against women in Nepal. Though the basic concept remains the same, the theory of feminism has evolved with time and their attributes vary. Broadly, the feminist theory has been classified as follows:

2.1.1 Liberal Feminism

Liberal feminism does not emphasize the importance of the private sector, which demands more time and energy from women but is at the same time less satisfying. It emphasizes on the concept of equal opportunities for the male and female. It says there must not be gender inequality among male and women. Consequently, there has been a continuous struggle by women to expand and build up their participation in the public area. In turn, liberal feminism identifies discriminatory legal provisions, lack of sharing of household duties by men, heavy work load at home, etc. as the principal obstacles to women's participation in the public area. It also raise voice for civil liberties, women's rights to own and transact property, the right to vote and to be represented in government and other services, the right to travel and to punish. They demand for equal legal rights and call for sharing of household work by men. They also call for expanded employment opportunities for women. This movement may bring the positive impact on women suffering from domestic violence. If the women were economically strong and educated then they will be conscious for their health and the problems from domestic violence may decrease to some extent (Tripathy, 1998 p. 12).

2.1.2 Radical Feminism

Radical feminism views women as most oppressed group of the world. Women are oppressed in each institution like family, society, state etc. Radical feminist define feminism as "a sexual system of power in which the man possesses superior power and economic privileges". Radical feminist blame that female is oppressed due to male domination in social institutions. The radical feminists reject the natural process of child bearing and interpret it as the strongest manifestation of gender oppression. However, many radical feminists have taken to technologies such as test-tube babies as alternatives to traditional childbearing practices. The ultimate goal of radical feminism is to eliminate patriarchy and the destruction of the regime of control by males (ibid, p.14).

2.1.3 Marxist Feminism

This theory talks about social and class exploitation. This theory says that god, supernatural forces, nature do not create the society and social change. It is the man who creates society and social change. Each and every activity in the society like gender issue, specific condition of women etc is created by man. Marxists feminism believes that women's unequal position in the society is not due to biological conditions but due to specific social arrangements. This theory fails to deal gender conflict at home and sexual harassment. Marxist theory focuses more on class than gender so Socialist feminists blame Marxist feminist for being gender bias (ibid, p.15).

2.1.4 Socialist feminism

Socialist feminism is based on classical Marxist feminism emerged in 1970s. Socialist feminism has attempted to analyze gender issues within capitalism at all levels of the society.

Socialist feminism believes that production and reproduction are equally important because production of the means of existence of food, shelter and clothing and tools are necessary for production and reproduction of human beings equally contributes to the reshape and continuation of human history. For social feminism booth production and reproduction are interlinked. For a socialist feminist the market and the kitchen are not two distinct locations. The market and the kitchen instead are closely intimately related spaces. It's very essential that women's health must be taken care by the family and has hindered in the development of the society. The impurity of the rural women suffers from this problem that they lag behind them much in productive area.

2.1.5 Definition of Domestic Violence

Violence Against Women and Girl can be defined as violation of a women's personhood, mental or physical integrity, or freedom of movement. It is the result of unequal power relation is patriarchy. The social structure that is constructed, reinforced and perpetuated by socio-political institutions put in place by men and which thereby ensure that men by virtue of their gender have power and control over women and children. Violence against women thus refers to all forms of violence, including traditional forms of violence in the Nepali context, inflicted as women an account of their gender (SAATHI, 1997 p. 32).

Women and girls are born into a system that endorses inequity and discrimination. They receive an unfair share of opportunities, attention and resources from the moment of their conception (SAATHI, 1997 p. 35).

Female infanticide, dowry deaths, acid attacks, trafficking for prostitution, honours killing, wife beating and rape are some of he harsh realities that women and girls face in every parts of the world today.

Violence means any act of commission or omission by individual or public life, which brings, harm, suffering or threat to girls and women and reflects systematic discrimination including harmful traditional practices and denial of human rights because of gender (Ruth Finney Hayward, Breaking the Earthenware Jar).

Around the World at least one women in every three has been beaten, coerced in to sex or otherwise abused in her life time (Op.cit, p.19).

In our society, after marriage women bear several kinds of violence such as physical as even in a pregnancy period women were also beaten brutally that result still birth. Foetal death, miscarriage and that also sometime damage the women's reproductive organs.

UNFPA, (2003), states that at least one in every five of the world's female population has been physically or sexually abused at sometime.

A husband or boyfriend for the purpose of coercing, intimidating a woman into submission defines domestic violence as force or threats of force or the violence can take the form of pushing, hitting, choking, slapping, kicking, burning or stabbing (Op.cit, p. 24).

Underlying the power relation is patriarchy –the social structure that is constructed, reinforced and perpetuated by socio-political institutions put in place by men and which thereby ensure that men, by virtue of their gender, have power and control over women and children. To overcome the traditional patriarchal mode of Nepalese society, the issue of violence against women and girls is yet to be recognized as a major implementer to the progress of women and development of the society (SAATHI, 1997 p.23).

Most domestic violence is gender violence, which means violence directed by men at women and girls, women who are the main victims because they have lower status and less power in the society than men (Ahuja, 1998 p. 18).

The security of the environment for women inside and outside the home as basic human right. However, in traditional patriarchal mode of Nepalese society the issue of domestic violence against women and girls is yet to be recognized as a major obstacle in the progress of women and development of society (ibid , p.21).

According to UNICEF, 2001, Violence against girls and women is global epidemic that kills, tortures and maims physically, psychologically, sexually and economically.

Violence against women is not only a violation of women's human rights but a major public health problem and major important cause of women's ill health. Researches are needed in both developing and developed countries to investigate the context and consequences of violence against women (UNDP/UNFPA/WHO. 1998 p. 27).

The form violence against women means any act or gender based violence that result in or is likely to result in physical , sexual or psychological harm or suffering to women , including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty whether occurring in public or in private life (Paudel, 2003 p. 15).

Article 2 of the UN Declaration clarifies that the definition of violence against women should encompass, but not be limited to, acts of physical, sexual and psychological violence in the family and the community. These acts include:

-) Spousal battering
-) Sexual abuse of female children,
-) Dowry related violence,
-) Rape including marital rape
-) Traditional practices harmful to women such as accusing a witches,
-) Non-spousal violence
-) Sexual harassment and intimidation at work and in school
-) Trafficking in women
-) Forced prostitution and
-) Violence perpetrated or condoned by the state such as rape in war (Population Reports, 1999 p. 25).

Violence not only harms women physically it also leaves deep psychological impact on both the victims and their families. Even their common their communities and the nation as a whole is affected by violence against women, likewise gender based violence has a negative effect as a women's ability to achieve and thus serves as obstacles in the path of socio economic development and the empowerment of women (SAATHI , 2001 p. 29).

While research into intimate partner abuse is in its early stages, there is growing agreement about its nature and the various factors that cause it. Often referred to as "Wife beating" "battering" or "domestic violence" intimate partner abuse is generally part of a pattern of abusive behaviour and control rather than an isolated act of physical aggression. Partner abuse can take a variety of forms including physical assault such as hits, slaps, kicks and beating, psychological abuse, such as constant belittling, intimidation and humiliation and coercive sex. It frequently includes control. Most cultures of the world are patriarchal in nature. In the socialization process while women are taught to be non-aggressive, violence, boldness and to be in control. Eastern cultures especially, put high value on the feminine virtues of women, thus reinforcing myths of women's helplessness. All these socio-cultural values hold true in the context of N terms of whose daughter (her father's), whose wife (her husband's), and whose mother (her son's) in the society. Thus, women are seen as having to be under the 'protection;' of a male member of her immediate family or kinsmen. A woman not under the 'protection' of a man is regarded with suspicion and doubt. The high value put on being 'protected' and on virginity and purity conditions women from retaliating against violence or tolerating it quietly.

Definition of VAWG drafted by the Inter American Convention on Women and Violence UNFPA (2003), states that; "VAW includes any act, omission or conduct by means of which physical, sexual or mental suffering is inflicted directly or indirectly through deceit, seduction or threat, harassment, coercion or any other means on any woman with the purpose or effect of intimidating, punishing or humiliating her or of maintaining her in sex stereotyped roles or of denying her of human dignity, sexual self determination, physical, mental and moral integrity or of undermining the security of her person, her self respect or her personality or of diminishing her physical or mental capacities."

Following forms of violence also appeared inside or outside the households.

-) Domestic violence
-) Sexual slavery, prostitution and international trafficking of women.
-) Incest
-) Reproductive rights violation
-) Rape

-) Sexual harassment
-) Sex discrimination
-) Medical abuse
-) Abuse of women with physical and mental disabilities
-) Culture bound practices harmful to women
-) Ritual abuse within religious cults
-) Marital rape
-) Pornography and abuse of women in media
-) Abuse of women in refugee or relocation camps custodial abuse
-) Female foeticide
-) Dowry related violence and murder.

2.2 Types of Violence

- A. Physical violence: when someone hurts another person's body: (UNDP/UNFPA/WHO, 1998 p. 13).
- B. Psychological Violence or Emotional Violence: This type of violence involves threat or intimidation or verbal abuse. It could be verbal or gestured threat to kill or harm physically or threatening with knife, gun or other lethal weapon. It can also be degrading or insulting words, public humiliate, prolonged silence after arguments, with drawl of affection, siding with relatives, sudden abandonment, ordering victim out of house, taking children away, forcing her to bear children, or facing her to have an abortion (ibid, p.26).
- C. Sexual abuse: When someone makes another person do sexual things against her will, this is sexual abuse (Women's health exchange: 1998).
- D. Traditional abuse: It includes Deuki and Badi Custom, Tari, Bonded Labour, Child marriage, accused of witch craft, forced labour, polygamy, dowry related violence and unsociability (ibid, p.29)

2.3 Situation of Violence in the Context of World

Around the world, violence against women occurs in different forms and degree. Violence against girls and women is global epidemic that kills, tortures and maims physically, psychologically, sexually and economically (Op.cit, p.32).

It is a pervasive and under-recognized human rights violation violence against women and girls cut across social and economic situations and is deeply embedded in cultures around the world so much so that Millions women consider it a way of life (Op.cit, p.34)

Around the world at least one women in every three has been beaten, coerced into sex or otherwise abused in her lifetime (UNDP/UNFPA/WHO, 1998 p. 24).

Estimates that at least one in every five of the world's female population has been physically or sexually abused at sometime (UNFPA, 2003 p. 21)

Sexual violence against girls and women has been seen throughout the world. Out of every five women, in the world is physically or sexually abused by a man, at some point in her life (ibid, p.25).

Violence against women is the most pervasive yet least recognized human rights abuse in the world. It also is a profound health problem, sapping women's energy, compromising their physical health and eroding their self- esteem. Despite its high costs, almost every society in the worl go unchallenged when men direct them at women, especially within the family (Population Reports, 1999). Much sexual coercion takes place against children or adolescents in both industrial and developing countries. Between one-third and two-thirds of known sexual assault victims are age 15 or younger (Population Reports, 1999 p.7)

In all Societies there are cultural institution beliefs and practice, that undermine women's autonomy and contribute to gender –based violence. Certain marriage practices, for example, can disadvantage women and girls especially where customs such as dowry and bride wealth have been corrupted by western 'consumer' culture (ibid, p.9).

In all part of the world, women are facing threats to their lives, health and well being as a result of being over burdened with work and of their lack of power and inference. In most regions of the world, women receive less formal education than men and at the same time, women's own knowledge, abilities and coping mechanisms of them go unrecognized (UNDP/UNFPA/WHO, 1998 p. 12).

Since in all societies discrimination on the basis of sex often starts at the earliest stage of life, greater equali provisions must be developed by the states. The major problems like domestic violence ty for the girl child is a necessary first step in ensuring that women realize their full potential and become equal partners in development. In a number of countries, the practice of prenatal sex selection, higher rates of mortality among very young girls, and lo

2.3.1 Situation of Violence in the Context of South Asia

The South Asian culture that has placed the women at inferior position, culture practice places daughter in laws lowest in family hierarchy. Even during pregnancy they often bear the harvest workload, but get least food (UNICEF, 2000 p.13).

South Asia is often referred to as the most gender insensitive region in the world. Girls in south Asia have lower social status and less value than boys who are preferred and invested upon (UNICEF, 2001 p.15).

Women and girls in south Asia are born into a system that endorses inequality and discrimination. South Asia, in particular, is having to many of the worst manifestations of gender violence in the world (ibid, p.17).

Often many forms of violence against women and girls are not even recognized as violence, but ignored, condoned or justified by involving religions, culture or traditional beliefs and practices. Legal and even judicial institutions fail to provide adequate safeguards for women and girls against violence. State institutions lack both the sensitivity and capacity to deal with gender specific violence, law enforcement seldom comes into action to aid women victims and judicial pronouncements have frequently reflected biases that indicate strong influence of prevalent social attitudes (UNDP/UNFPA/WHO, 1998).

2.3.2 Situation of Violence in the Context of Nepal

Many scholars and organizations (SAATHI, 1997, Paudel, 2003, Care Nepal, 2001 MOPE, 2004) show different aspects of violence against women in Nepal. Empirical findings show that through language, gesture and/ or touch (eve-teasing), trafficking and forced position or the more covert forms through verbal and psychological been validated as being very high. Existence of mental and emotional torture was reported by 93 percent of the total respondents (sample size: 1250) and beating was also identified as the most common form of physical violence against women and girls (82 %) in Nepal, followed by rape (30 %) and forced prostitution (28 %) (SAATHI, 1997 p.23)

While Nepali society (as well as most of the south Asian) upholds the ‘Chastity’ and ‘virginity’ of a girl the ultimate prestige and ‘dignity’ of a family. On the other hand, the socialization process encourages girls and women to become victims as in instates in them the values of suffer is silence’ ‘tolerance’ and ‘non-relation’ values of being ‘shy’ and ‘shameful; abo

Likewise, in general Nepali society is a practical, with pervasive and ingrained gender discrimination within the context of strong male dominance in all aspect of life. Through there are difference in terms of ethnic and religions groups, women in general lag far behind men in access to resources, basic services like education and health, information and knowledge, opportunities for employment and in political representation. Nation-wide only a quarter of women are literate (Paudel, 2003 p.16).

Many of our mothers, sister-in-laws, elders and younger sister still feel pride in preserving the old traditions and beliefs. But many of these traditional conservation beliefs and practices hinder women’s development. For example, menstruation is neither a curse nor a sin but is unfortunately still considered so in many parts of our country (Care Nepal, 2001). “Chhaupadi” system is widely practiced in the hilly district of far western Nepal. The system is rather more pervasive and extreme in Achham- the district with is one of the highest gender gaps in literacy, i.e. female 85 and male 414 percent in Nepal. “Chhaupadi” is the word locally used for women’s menstrual period. During this period, girls and women are not allowed to stay in their houses. They have to stay out in a tiny hut called a “take nutrition food and have to live on dry bread and hot peppers. Women have to prepare their food for themselves and stay in these unhealthy huts for a period of seven days. On the 7th day, they take bath and wash their clothes and return to their houses (Care Nepal, 2001 p. 16).

Women in Nepal as elsewhere are responsible for three types of work; reproduction, management of the household and employment. However, reproduction is not treated as work and management of the household is not considered as a productive work. Moreover, women in Nepal work for longer than men, have much lower opportunity for gainfully employment and possess extremely limited property right (Tripathy, 1998 p.13)

In Nepalese society, a strong preference for sons exists. In other words, discrimination against girls starts as soon as they are born. Thus they are deprived in the field of education, health and other sectors. HMG has taken both legal and social initiatives to address the existing discriminatory practices, however the progress in this regard is slow mainly because of a. traditional patriarchal attitude b. Poverty c. Weak enforcement of legal provisions (MOPE, 2004 p.15).

According to article published dated 2004, March–11 by MOPE in well known Daily Newspaper, Kathmandu Post belonging to city post, eve teasing as such is never looked upon as a big problem in most of the countries. However, most girls get a daily dose of eve teasing on the natural and no concern need to be raised as such. In other words it is not considered a big deal. So when in life straits, nothing can be done except complaining or suffering in silence, which further encourages men to continue the lewd acts. Eve teasing as such is a universal problem that has no remedy. Ignoring is the best possible strategy. But to what extent this issue and that act are ignored in Nepal.

Nepali proverbs that propagate gender discrimination, in other words violence against girls and women are focused on the following proverbs:

- Celebrate the birth of a son by sacrificing a goat and the birth of daughter by sacrificing a pumpkin.
- Let it be late, but let it be a son
- The birth of son pomes the way to heaven.
- When a daughter is born her fate is doomed.
- Son in arm; daughter on the farm.
- Better nourish a servant than a daughter or an unsaturated he-goat.
- A daughter is another's property.

English translation done by Rajendra (CARE Nepal 2001 p.34). According to article published dated 2001, March-8th by Damakant Jayashi in well known daily newspaper Kathmandu post about discriminatory laws of Nepal are as follows:

- The constitution, conceived as late as 1990 and Interim constitution 2063, denies the women to pass her nationality to her children. Besides, if her husband is a foreigners, then neither he nor the children born out this wedlock can get Nepalese citizenship/ whereas a man can pass his nationality to his foreign wife and the their children. He added that this is not only a several and blatant violation of a Nepalese women's right to choose her husband, other complication like transfer of property, among others, will also arise. Is this not a clear instance of following a man to marry whomever he likes but the same is denied to women.
- When it comes to making a passport, women below the age of 35 must produce the written consent of her guardian. No such bar on man.

2.4 Empirical Literature Review

SAATHI, according to two national level workshop reports conducted in 1997, the common forms of violence against women in the rural and urban regions which is related to domestic or other forms of violence of Nepal are: Domestic violence, Physical torture and battering causing serious injury and even death in the household also, Mental torture, verbal abuse and false acquisitions, Rape (inside and outside the home), Traditional forms of violence (polygamy, child marriage, unmatched marriage, Jari related marriage system), Flesh trade and trafficking, Violence caused by society (social norms) and state e.g. caste discrimination, Torture for dowry, Pregnant before reaching legal age(lack of knowledge about reproductive right), Enforced abortion and female foeticide, Discriminatory laws and Threatening through telephones and letters.

Incest-exploitation is also another form of violence against women. Incestuous relationship is mostly between women and her brother, brother-in-law, father or even with both paternal and maternal uncles, with even grand uncles, father-in-laws, nephews and son-in-laws as the possible perpetrators. Normally most of these types of relationship have developed from early childhood period. Due to these kinds of relationships, it will create fear of social dishonour, fear of perpetrators, deeply prolong silence and secrecy.

Because of the incestuous relationships victims suffer from psychological as well as social impact in their life time. Due to incestuous sexual violence victims can feel a lot of guilt of having participated willingly or forcibly in a sexual relationship with a blood feeling about themselves. Victim may suffer stress and most of the time feel terrified as well as sleep disturbances. Most of the victims on even the will also suffered from frequent mood swings and felt angry.

If the case comes out in the society, incest felt socially discriminated and had difficulties to adjust in the society once again. Nobody wanting to accompany them in public places, labeling them as deviants.

The deep psychological suffering harboured by incest and the intense feelings of guilt, shame and self dislike as well as low self esteem combined with being treated as a social out cast and unwanted person (From a survey article incest (Their secret sex) "society and life" magazine).

The main causes for the victimization of women are: Lack of education and awareness, Deep rooted socialization process, the traditional discriminatory upbringing of the son and daughters which begins at home and is supported by society and state, Poverty and economic dependency, Women's sacrificing nature and acceptance of violence, Lack of Domestic Violence in this family structure can take different forms such as: Violence between a couple: Due to incapability, sex role conflicts, personality clashes, family disputes, disparity in educational or socio-economic status, child marriage, unmatched marriage bigamy etc, Child abuse: A child can be abused in the family by parents and other members for reasons such as undue expectations, lack of parenting knowledge, differential treatment based on sex, child labour, incest etc, Abuse of elders: Elders may be abused by children when they are regarded as a burden, desire to Wrest Control Over the property, old age and economic dependency on children, physical abuse under intoxication, abandoning old parents, Violence within the family may take place due to external factors. Dowry, property dispute between siblings, marriage against family consent, mental illness etc. (ibid, p.29).

Violence against women and girls includes physical, sexual, psychological and economic abuse. It is often known as "gender based" violence because it evolves in part from women's subordinate status in society. Violence against women is the most pervasive at least recognized human right violation in the world. It also is a profound health problem, sapping women's energy, compromising their physical health, and eroding their self-esteem. Two of the most common forms of violence against women are abuse by intimate partner battering is almost always accompanied by psychological abuse cases by forced sex as well. The majority of women who are abused by their partners are abused many times (Adhikari, 2004 p.25).

According to Beijing platform of action (1995) violence against women is any act of gender based violence that result or is likely to result in physical, sexual or psychological harm or suffering to women in threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, whether occurring in public or private people (UN Declaration, Article 1, 1993). WHO stated that around the world at least one woman in every three has been beaten, coerced into sex, or otherwise abused in her life time. Most often the abuser is a member of her own family. Increasingly, gender based violence is recognized as a major public health concern and violation of human rights (Op.cit, p.23).

According to UNICEF 2001, Violence against girls and women is a global epidemic that kills, tortures and maims physically, psychologically, sexually and economically. Forms of its includes physical, Sexual, Psychological and economic abuse. It is often known as "gender-based" violence because it evolves in part from women's subordinate status in the society. Many cultures have beliefs, norms and social institution that legitimize and therefore perpetuate violence against women.

Nepal is a poor country and due to its patriarchal norms and values there are so many reasons, which cause violence against women in Nepal. Though the basic concept remains the same, the theory of feminism has evolved with time and their attributes vary. Every female, should think about conceiving the theory of feminism. Not only the "Feminist" should fight for women, but it is the duty of every woman in person to be dedicated to the upbringing of the status of women. I, being a female, have therefore, chosen a topic for my thesis, which is prevalent in women, a domestic problem, which has been neglected, and has never been thought the women's problem as human problem. Due to the subordination, suppression, oppression women's health in general is very critical. Moreover, the reproductive health of women should be very good. If a domestic environment gives peace and cordial relation among family members including male and female, then in future it develops the strong status of the family, community and the country. So, this study has been prepared through liberal feminism and socialist feminism perspective.

CHAPTER – THREE

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

3.1 Selection of the Study Area

The study area (Barahathawa VDC of Sarlahi District) is situated in the central part of Sarlahi district. The women in this VDC are indigenous people. No other scholars have researched on the Domestic Violence Against Married Women: A Study of Barahathawa VDC of Sarlahi district. The researcher is an inhabitant of this VDC that is why it made easier for data collection so this VDC is selected as a study area. The study will be conducted 1 and 2 wards in this VDC. This research area has been chosen purposively and viability of the respondents.

3.2 Research Design

As the concerned aspect of the study under the research design is descriptive type in nature. It is described in present condition of Domestic Violence against Married Women: A Study of Community in Barahathawa VDC of Sarlahi District and also described in rituals, festivals and others cultures of study area.

3.3 Universe and Sample Design

Fifty-four respondents have been purposively selected for the sample. The study population consists of 540 currently married women, Divorced and separated of aged 15 – 49 years. 10 percent of population i.e. 54 respondents were chosen through purposive sampling method. In this study researcher has given focus to the married women because there is more probability of suffering from violence in our society.

3.4 Sample Procedure

Sampling procedure is the backbone to obtain the expected information to the study. In this research study, at first researcher consult/visits especial individual to interact/discuss for overall study purpose about study population. Those especial persons who are associated with social-political leaders, community level leaders, local teachers (male/female), mothers groups, local youth club, health workers, social workers and related with NGOs etc. were involved to informed/help about the availability of respondents in the study area. Researcher had given highly preference to married women information from the key informants in this research. The total household in ward number 1 and 2 were not taken for the study purpose. The study sample consists of 54 respondents out of 540 population which were selected purposively using random table.

3.5 Nature and Sources of Data

The nature of the data is both qualitative and quantitative. Primarily this study is based on primary source of data collection using purposive sampling method. The secondary data are used as complementary which are obtained through literature review from journal, articles, books, pervious studies, survey reports and other reports.

3.6 Tools of Data Collection

The questionnaire was structured, pre-coded and opened. The questionnaire was also pre-tested and then required modifications were made before field work. The whole sets of questionnaire are divided into four sections. In first section contains information on personal identification, of the respondents, the second section contains, knowledge, attitude towards VAW. Third section contains violence related question and fourth section related to knowledge of legal provision, social and community based organizations and solution of domestic violence.

For the first time the researcher explained the purpose of visits to the concerned people who have information about the availability of respondents like female health worker, female teacher, community political leaders, people of local clubs etc. who were supported to the researcher for the availability of focused groups respondents. Then after when the researcher meet the respondents and he explained the details about the purpose of the research then selected the respondents purposively. The qualitative and quantitative data were collected through the structured questionnaires.

3.7 Data Analysis and Interpretation Procedure

Gathered data and information is presented in simple statistical and descriptive way. The data and descriptive information is analyzed according to the percentages and frequency. The study information is obtained on socio-economic, demographic structure and domestic violence against women and analyzed descriptive way.

3.8 Limitation of the Study

Limitations are the drawback/pitfalls of the study. These are the condition under which study can not be done no more. In other words, limitations are problems that have to face by the researcher during his filed research or study. There are certain drawbacks occur during the study period. They are:

Thus, the researcher needed to work within these limitations. It was quite difficult to convince the respondents. Therefore, convincing them about the problems of Women, separately from the basic necessities in their lives was a challenge.

This study only limited based on the primary data sources. The study area only limited to Community in Barahathawa VDC of Sarlahi District. Twenty-seven representatives were take part from each ward covering caste and ethnicity. This study only focus married women and domestic violence against them. Out of the total population of the entire VDC only 54 respondents 15-49 years age groups were included in this study. The findings of the study does not represent for the other part of the country.

This study was conducted in one of the remote terai village. It does not represent the other part of the country.

CHAPTER – FOUR

SOCIO–DEMOGRAPHIC STRUCTURE AND DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

Chapter four deals with socio-economic, culture and demographic characteristics of respondents. Age, religion, marital status, educational attainments are the main concerns clearly presented in this chapter.

4.1 Socio –Demographic Structure

4.1.1 Age Structure

Age structure is one of the major important factors for the study of violence against women.

Table 1: Distribution of Respondents by Age Structure

Age group	Number	Percentage
15-19	5	9.3
20-24	7	13.0
25-29	12	22.1
30-24	10	18.5
35-39	16	14.8
40-44	15	14.0
45-49	9	8.3
Total	54	100

Source: Field Survey, 2013

According to the table 1, the highest proportion of respondents 22.1% are in 25-29 age groups, followed by 30-34 age groups, 35-39 age group orderly 18.5% and 14.5 percentage. The lowest proportions are in 45 -49 age groups 8.3% and 15 -19 age group 9.3 percent.

4.1.2 Marital Status

Normally marital status refers to married, divorced, separated and widow.

Table 2: Distribution of Respondents by Marital Status

Marital Status	Number	Percentage
Married	34	62.0
Divorced	5	9.1
Separated	3	5.5
Widow	12	23.4

Table 2, clears that majority of the respondents 34(62.0%) are married women, followed by widow women 12(23.4%) which are highly preference by the researcher, similarly 5 respondents (9.1%) are divorced and 6 respondents 3(5.5%) are separated women. Table, further shows that the percentages of the widows are high. In this study, researcher found widow women because mostly widow women faced several forms of violence in our society.

4.1.3 Types of Family

Forming family is universal. It is compulsorily established in our society. Family is either joint or nuclear in its types.

Table 3: Distribution of Respondents by Type of Family

Types of family	Number	Percentage
Joint	22	40.7
Nuclear	32	59.3
Total	54	100

Table 3, shows that, 32 respondents (59.3%) are living in nuclear family and only 22 respondents (40.7%) are living in joint family. From the above table it shows that there is increasing tendency towards nuclear family with compared to joint family system.

4.1.4 Child Bearing Status

Child bearing condition is also the most essential factor for determining the family dispute. Most of the women facing domestic violence because of childlessness as well as not able to given a male child in her life time. So infertility is the major sources of domestic violence in our society.

Table 4: Distribution of Respondents by Child Bearing Status

Given birth to child	Number	Percentage
Yes	47	87
No	7	13.0

From table 4, it is clear that out of 54 entire respondents 87% women have given birth to child, ty of the women facing domestic violence if they are unable to give live birth with compared to women having at least a baby.

4.1.5 Age at Marriage

Age at marriage is another factor for determining the domestic violence against women. Early marriage is mostly Sarlahierous to women's health. If early child bearing in the household there will be highly chance of decreasing maternal and child health condition. This is the other types of violence which is known by violence of health and reproductive as well as reproductive rights violence.

Table 5: Distribution of Respondents by Age at Marriage

Age at marriage	Number	Percentage
Less than 15	5	9.3
15-20	36	66.7
20 and more	13	24
Total	54	100

Table 5, clearly indicate that 36 respondents (66.7%) women have age at marriage between 15 – 20 years. 13 respondents (24%) women have age at marriage after 20 year of age and also table shows that 9.3% women have age at marriage below 15 years of age. Table also indicated that majority of the respondents get married in the age group 15 – 20 years age. It is clear that, women gradually become informative and educated that will certainly lead to reduce domestic violence against women.

4.1.6 Education Attainment of the Respondents

Education is one of the prime factor of empowering women with the knowledge skill and self-confidence necessary to participate fully in the development process. Form the field survey of the Barahathawa VDC most of the women are literate only including able to read and write.

Table 6: Distribution of Respondents by Educational Level

Education level	Number	Percentage
Illiterate	13	23.2
Literate	25	46.3
Primary & Secondary	12	22.2
S.L.C. and above	4	8.3
Total	54	100

Table 6, showed that the highest proportion of women 46.3% can read and write and 13 responded that women having no education facing greater risk of VAW comparing to the women having primary/secondary SLC or above education.

4.1.7 Occupation of the Couples

Primarily occupation is directly related to the people's educational status. Therefore, those persons having professional job, there is less chance of occurring VAW with comparing persons having blue colour job.

Table 7: Distribution of Respondents by Occupation of the Husband and Wife

Occupation	Husband		Wife
	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage
Agriculture	21	38.9	20	36.1
Services	15	27.8	6	12.0
Business	11	20.3	11	21.3
Household chores	4	7.4	14	25.0
Others	3	5.6	3	5.6
Total	54	100	54	100

From table 7, it is clear that majority of male partner engaged in agricultural work (38.9%), 27.8% persons are involved in services. Table, further indicate that persons who are involved in agriculture there will be more possibility of family dispute with comparing to the persons involving in the field of business and services. In this way table also show that 36.1 percent women engaged in agricultural field. 25.0% respondents replies that their daily duty is household chores. Only 12% respondents are participating in the service sector. Study further shows that women participating in services sectors are highly informative and aware than comparing women who are engaging in agriculture as well as household chores.

5.2 Conclusion

Violence against women is the main obstacles for the women empowerment. Violence against women is the violation of women's all forms of human rights. It makes the women, less confident, inferior and it also damage the women's self esteem, create social humiliate etc. this study deals only with the domestic violence in Barahathawa VDC in Sarlahi district. This study was selected purposively and availability of respondent. The researcher had taken 54 respondents from the entire VDC and 27 representatives were chosen from each works. The study area was found diversity in caste, ethnic groups, religions, culture and socio-economic background. Barahathawa VDC closely joined with Sarlahi district. Physical and infrastructure development was good in this VDC. In this VDC people get transportation facilities, education, health facilities, electricity, pure drinking water, modernization, economic opportunities etc. There are various family size were found such as family size; one to two, two to four, four to six, six to nine and above nine family members. In this VDC most of the respondents are Hindus 70.4 percent, followed by Buddhist 18.5% percent and Christianity 11.1%. The large proportion 22.1 percent of women interviewed are at the age group 25-29 years, followed by 30-40 years age groups 18.5 percent.

On the basis of field survey, in this VDC the events of domestic violence were highly occur in intermediate ages. People are involved in cash crops like poultry farm, floriculture, vegetables farming etc. In this VDC people are involved in social welfare sectors also but in this VDC not equally distribution of development activities. Some places in this VDC can be seen, the living standard of the people is very low in every respect. Due to low level of living people were also found uneducated, poor health, unaware, engaging in alcoholing, gambling, traditional believes, system, due to these reasons most of the women facing violence behaviour.

Most of the women keep the incident secrete for the sake of prestige, which is also increase the domestic violence against women, from the views of respondents the cause of domegambling, not able to work, drugs addicting, marital problems, due to childlessness etc. according to the opinion of respondents it is clear that control alcohol, providing job opportunities, to give education for daughter, to respect wife, to love daughter-in-law, believe to husband and wife, skilful training for women, economic independent of women, equal opportunity for daughter-in-law etc. are essential to prevent or eliminated domestic violence against married women.

Finally it is suggested that local youth club, CBOs , and NGOs will give their attention to prevent/eliminate domestic violence against women. Finally awareness and empowerment, skilful training for women, opportunity to work for women. Stronger political commitment and community groups to be activate to impose adequate punishment to abuser and protect women from victimization.

5.3 Further Research Issue

This study is only based on domestic violence against married women in Barahathawa VDC of Sarlahi district. In this study, only 27 representatives from each wards of the VDC were taken. This study does not cover the entire women's population and their related issues. In this case a separate study could be done on domestic violence against women in all wards of the VDC of this district. In this topics not including all age groups women, only married women were included.

This study only related to domestic violence (including physical psychological) against only 15-49 age group women within household, traditional violence, dowry related violence, discriminatory practices and other types of violence ignored which is important for study.

This study only descriptive base, an analytical study is for better to reach the logical end. A baseline survey to estimate the exact size of victim of domestic against married women is needed.
