Acknowledgements

First of all, I would like to express my heartiest thanks to my supervisor Ram Chandra Paudel for his indelible prescription and invaluable guidance, without whose corroboration this thesis would ever have been completed in determined time.

I am also indebted to my teachers Dr. Amma Raj Joshi, Dr. Anirudra Thapa, Dr. Shiva Ram Rijal, Badri Acharya, Raj Kumar Baral and Hem Lal Pandey who cooperated during the time of preparation of my thesis. I also acknowledge the contribution of American resource Centre, Kathmandu, Central Library, TU and Central Department of English, Kirtipur, for allowing me to use the library and resource materials for my thesis.

Also, I would like to remember my father Yognath Paudel and mother Radha Devi Paudel for their continuous love, support, patience and encouragement. I would also thank Jaya and Maddati for their support, suggestions and guidance.

Finally, I would remember my friends Saroj Devkota, Saroj Pokhrel, Bijay Lama, Dines Siwakoti, and Kiran Thapa for their emotional support and words of inspiration. Here, I would like to acknowledge that any merits in this thesis are because of the guidance and suggestions from my teachers and support from my family and friends and the inconsistencies and weakness are all my own.

Abstract

The Time of The Hero is a satire on human nature and their way of behavior. It depicts the vices and the follies of the human beings through the presentation of characters like Arana, Alberto, Senora's father and Jaguar; and also focuses on how these vices can be eradicated from the society. The mischievous activities like smoking, drinking, visiting prostitution hall, peeping through the key hole are some of the medium through which the vices of the society are revealed out. This research also suggests that the vices and the follies are so pervasive in the modern society that they have totally engulfed the whole particular nation. Modern sophisticated society harbors the vices and follies of the individuals and it has created the huge problem in the society.
