ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) critically affects businesses' abilities to achieve competitive advantages. This thesis presents a systematic modern approach for Enterprise Resource Planning of Subha Industries. The findings suggested the multi-policy based on the nature of resources for the additional gain. This would certainly aid other businesses of same nature also for the efficient management of resources.

I would like to extend my deep gratitude to my thesis supervisor Asso. Prof. Shree Bhadra Neupane and Er. Shankar Nath Adhikari, Lecturer of Shanker Dev Campus and for their valuable guidance, encouragement, constructive suggestions and supervision in the course of preparation of this dissertation in the present form. The cooperation of the officers of the Subha Industries is overwhelming. I just can not forget them for their valuable interaction.
