ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This work is the outcome of the long and troublesome months of struggle for the relevant materials. But, I tried my best to complete the job and this moment came in my life. While preparing this study I am heavily indebted to my teacher and supervisor Associate Prof. Dr. Pushpa Sherstha (Malla), Central Department of Economics, Trivhuban University, for her invaluable suggestions guidance and motivation. Without her immense support this piece of work may not come out in this form. Moreover, I think rare people can have such chance to have dynamic, energetic and caring supervisor like her. My gratitude also goes to Prof. Dr. Rudra Prasad Upadhya (Head of Department, CDECON), Mr. Naveen Adhikari (Lecturer, CDECON) and all teachers and administrative support staff of CDECON. I have been greatly benefitted by the guidance and help from all friends and colleagues to bring this thesis into the present form. In particular, I would like to acknowledge the help from the Ministry of Finance, National Planning Commission, Nepal Rastra Bank, Central Bureau of Statistics and Central Library, T U, Kirtipur.

Last but not the least, I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude to Anil, Laxman, Suraj, Madhu, Kamala, Bharat, Devendra, Guru, Bidur and all friends for their co-operation and I would like to dedicate this piece of work especially to my Ama, Buwa Daju, Bhauju, Seasun, Sidhanta and Kanchhu; my source of inspiration. Without them I would not be able to exist in the earth.
