ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The present study is though particularly related with life insurance products and its market distribution in Nepal, it would significantly help to understand the different aspect and status of life insurance business in Nepal. It was an unforgettable experience, which provides me an opportunity to gain practical knowledge of the study rather than mere conventional concept and theories. Every research work is made possible by many helping hands. So, I would like to acknowledge my deepest gratitude to those entire respected persons who helped me in successful completion of the thesis. First of all, my kind appreciation to my esteemed teachers and thesis supervisors Mrs. Snehalata Kafle and Mr. Kamal Prakash Adhikari to their excellent guidance right from the time of selection of topic and throughout the course of study. Similarly, I would also like to thank library staffs of TU and SDC who continuously support me during the selection of topic and course of study.

I especially like to thank Mr. Basant Limbu, Training Manager, ALICO-Nepal for his kind interest to assist me with incessant suggestions and in sharing of his expertise knowledge of life insurance sector at any time whenever needed. Similarly, I am extremely indebted to staffs of Insurance Board Mr. Kundan Sapkota and Mr. Purna Thapa for their valuable time, guidance, and cooperation for providing me necessary data's & information about insurance industry in Nepal. Besides, I should not forget to appreciate the entire respondent's people without whom research work would have been completely impossible.

Finally, I would like to take this opportunity to homage my Parents, Brother and Sister for their support in my education and for their valuable suggestion for completion of this dissertation. Last but not least, I am solely responsible for any error remain in this research.
