Proposed Title of The Thesis: Treatment of Motherhood in Sylvia Plath's Poetry

Statement of Problem

Plath has presented pregnancy as a disgusting experience through "Metaphor" has shown mother as an escapist in "Tulips", attempted to transcend the singularity of existence through "Edge" and the presentation of the sense of alienation and disgust through "Morning Song".

Hypothesis:

The poet's inner psyche and the influence of the contemporary busy life of the mothers and the lack of maternal love in her personal life holds the unusual portrayal of motherhood.

Tool: Modern Feminism
