

TRIBHUVAN UNIVERSITY

Exploration of Economics and Sexuality: A Psycho-Marxist Reading of Lawrence's The Rainbow

A Thesis Submitted to the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, in Partial Fulfillment of the Requirements for the Degree of Masters of Arts in English

by

Badri Kumar Khatri

Central Department of English

Kirtipur, Kathmandu

July 2009

TRIBHUVAN UNIVERSITY

Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences

This thesis entitled “Exploration of Economics and Sexuality: A Psycho-Marxist Reading of Lawrence's The Rainbow” by Mr. Badri Kumar Khatri, submitted to the Central Department of English, Tribhuvan University has been accepted by the undersigned members of the thesis committee.

Members of the Research Committee:

Internal Examiner

External Examiner

Head

Central Department of English

Date: _____

Acknowledgements

In the process of conducting this dissertation, Mr. Prakash Subedi, Central Department of English (CDE) was of great assistance. I remain indebted to his scholarly guidance.

I also would like to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to Prof. Dr. Krishna Chandra Sharma, Head, CDE who was ever helpful and encouraging. Besides, all the professors, readers and lecturers of the CDE deserve my sincere gratitude for their assistance and suggestions.

I also take this moment to express my thanks to all my friends, colleagues, sister Durga, Mr. Chandra Luitel, and for all of them who assisted in the process of the completion of this thesis.

July 2009

Badri Kumar Khatri

Abstract

Lawrence's The Rainbow is a tale of uncontrolled sensual desires of the Brangwen family members that have its root in the unfulfilled socio-economic aspects of their life. The novel takes on images and symbols as the source of expression of their unfulfilled desires. The Brangwens living in a small countryside village are often engaged in numerous courtships, largely because of their un-satiating sexual desire. However, they are ever frustrated and hungry for new relationships, as the only source of income of the family, the farm, could not permit them the desired freedom. Take for, Tom Brangwen, who marries a divorced Polish woman, leaves her and falls for Anna, but still longs for a family life. Similarly, Ursula, the youngest of the Brangwens, who is the most sensual, shares relationships with one of her lady teachers, with classmates, a professor, a cousin brother; however, at the end is still lonely and un-satiated. Thus, the tradition of unfulfilled sensuality of the Brangwen members has its root in theirs' insecure and flexible socio-economic background.

Contents

Acknowledgements

Abstract

I. Contextualizing Lawrence's The Rainbow	1
II. Psycho-Marxist Analysis	13
III. A Psycho-Marxist Readings of The Rainbow	30
IV. Conclusion	49
Works Cited

TRIBHUVAN UNIVERSITY

Kirtipur Kathmandu

Central Department of English

Letter of Recommendation

Mr. Badri Kumar Khatri has completed his thesis entitled “Exploration of Economics and Sexuality: A Psycho-Marxist Reading of Lawrence's The Rainbow” under my supervision. He carried out his research work from November 13, 2008 to July 26, 2009. I hereby recommend his thesis be submitted for viva voce.

Prakash Subedi

Central Department of English

Date: