ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Over the past decade, there has been tremendous growth in Nepalese financial sector both in the size and number. Due to the growth of financial institution, the interest in micro finance as a means of extending financial services to rural communities has seen a dramatic increase during this period. The objective of this research is to identify the opportunity of micro financing for the commercial and development banks of Nepal.

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my respected supervisors' duo Dr. Shilu Manandhar Bajracharya and Mr. Indra Sharma, Shanker Dev Campus for their continuous guidance and supervision. The research in this form is the product of their inspiring and valuable guidance.

I am highly grateful to Mr. Vijay Gurung, Relationship Manager, Bank of Kathmandu Ltd. and Mr. Raj Kumar Thapa, Head – Renewable Energy and Micro Finance Department for their effortless guidance throughout my research period. The quality of this research would not have been to this level without their valuable co-operation.

Lastly, but not the least, I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who have directly or indirectly helped me in the preparation of this research report.
