Acknowledgements

The thesis entitled “Existential Approach to George Eliot’s The Mill on the Floss” has been prepared in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the Degree of Master of Arts in English. It would not have come to this form without support and encouragement from my teachers, and friends. So it comes as an outcome of the effort from many people. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to all of them.

I am highly indebted to my teacher and supervisor Prakash Adhikari, for his invaluable guidance, suggestions and every kind of support. I am very much impressed by his research expertise and encouragement that made this thesis writing a pleasant pursuit.

I would also like to express my sincere gratefulness to Dr. Man Bahadur K. C., Head of the Department of English, P. N. Campus, Pokhara, for granting me opportunity to carry out this work and his invaluable advice for improvement of this drafts. Similarly, I would like to thank all the members of Department of English for their encouragement.

Special thanks go to my life partner Mrs. Asmita Sharma (Baral) for her encouragement. My very special reverence goes to my father Chinta Mani Baral and Mother Sita Baral, who took pains in my growth.

Last but not the least, I am thankful to my brother Amrit and friend Mr. Laxman Gairhe for help and Everest computer center for providing services related to computer works.
