ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This field work report is prepared by dissertation for the partial fulfillment of the requirement for the Master's Degree course in management. It has been tried to cover empirical findings concerning tax planning and its applicability in Nepalese organization. This study deals with the implementation aspect of tax planning in Nepal.

I am deeply indebted to my respected supervisor Dr. Kamal Deep Dhakal who has graced me his valuable suggestion and kind guidance. Any attempt to express my gratitude to him in words is bound to be inadequate. Without his constant supervision and intellectual guidance, this dissertation would have never appeared in this form.

I would like to thank all respondents for providing their suggestion and responding my questionnaire. Similarly, I would like to thank to staff of Inland Revenue Department, Lazimpat for their help and support for require data and information. I am equally thankful to my family and friend Bishnu Thapa for their support and promptness to lend a helping hand whenever I needed their help.
