Acknowledgements

I am deeply grateful to my teacher and supervisor Lecturer Kamal Prasad Thoklihang, who showed interest in my topic of this thesis. Without his consent for guidance, it would be impossible to carry out research in the area of my interest. I am also thankful to Hriseekesh Upadhyay, Reader, Head, Department of English, Ratna Rajya Laxmi Campus, Tribhuvan University for his encouragement in the class and on my proposal as well.

Numerous individuals like Prof Dr NK Rai, linguist Sueyoshi Toba, Prof Dr Karen H Ebert, and Prof Dr Martin Gaenzle have become my source of inspiration for this thesis paper.

I acknowledge my spouse Dr Lal-Shyākarelu Rapacha's assistance in collecting texts and research resources in the course of my research. He helped in typing and editing my manuscript. He deserves my deepest thanks. Ms Samala Badacha also assisted in typing. My daughter Animon Rapacha was very patient of my busy hours during the resource-finding and draft period. I have taken much more helps from several libraries and Yayokkha in the Kathmandu valley.

My obvious thanks are due to the National Foundation for Development of Indigenous Nationalities for providing me grants for this research. Lastly, some of my classmates like Yogesh Jerung and others were catalysts towards the completion of the study successfully.
