ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This study was possible with the cooperation, support and kindness of many people. I am highly indebted to the Limbus of my research area - Sammang and Manghim for their keen interest in my study. This study would not have been completed without their trust, generous cooperation and patience.

I am grateful to my key informant Mr. Aagendra Wanem who helped me to identify the Limbu households as well as introduced me with most of the Limbu families. I am also thankful to Bhimsen Limbu and to the Kirat Yakthung Chumlung, Central Office in Lalitpur for providing me with valuable information and materials on the various aspects of the Limbu culture and society.

I express sincere appreciation to my supervisor, Dr. Ram Bahadur Chettri for his guidance and insight throughout the research with great deal of patience and tolerance especially while reviewing my thesis draft continuously. I would also like to express my gratitude to the University Campus; Department of Sociology/ Anthropology and to all the Lecturer, Readers and Professors for their guidance and friendly environment in the classroom.

Lastly, but in no sense the least, I am thankful to my family and friends who supported and encouraged me throughout the entire endeavor.
