

Tribhuvan University

Atwood's The Penelopiad as a Feminist Critique of Homeric Myth

A Thesis Submitted to the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences in the Partial Fulfillment of the Requirements for the Degree of Master of Arts in English

By

Gopikesh Acharya

Central Department of English

Kirtipur, Kathmandu

May 2013

Tribhuvan University
Central Department of English

Letter of Recommendation

Gopikesh Acharya has completed the thesis entitled "Atwood's The Penelopiad as a Feminist Critique of Homeric Myth" under my supervision. He carried out his research from May 2012 to April 2013. I hereby recommend his thesis be submitted for viva-voce.

.....

Badri Prasad Acharya

Supervisor

Date.....

Tribhuvan University

Central Department of English

Approval Letter

This thesis entitled "Atwood's The Penelopiad as a Feminist Critique of Homeric Myth" submitted to the Central Department of English, Tribhuvan University, by Gopikesh Acharya has been approved by the undersigned members of the Research Committee.

Members of Research Committee

Internal

External

Head

Central Department of English, T.U.

Date: _____

Acknowledgements

I would like to acknowledge the names of many people who gave their supportive hands and intellectual guidance to me throughout this research. It is not possible to list all of them. However, I must not forget Mr. Badri Prasad Acharya, lecturer at Central Department of English, who always intellectually encouraged and guided me to bring this thesis into the present form. Mr. Acharya illustrated the mistakes, inaccuracies, relevance and significance of this research and made me skillful to finalize it. I am grateful to him for his scholarly guidance, invaluable suggestions and constant encouragements. I express my gratitude to Prof. Dr. Amma Raj Joshi, Head of Central Department of English for providing me an opportunity to conduct research in my area of interest.

I do not forget the dear colleagues of Nepal Center for Contemporary Research (NCCR) for their kind suggestions, comments and intellectual support to me throughout this research. Special thanks go to Dr. Bishnu Raj Upreti, director of NCCR, who intellectually supported me in every step and method of this research.

Furthermore, I do not forget the dear friends including Saroj G. C., C. P. Aryal, Bijay Raj Poudel, Milan Baral, Safal Ghimire, Ashok Aryal, Suwas Devkota, Dhiran Sharma, Narayan Basyal, Jagannath Timilsina, and Pradeep Basyal for their insightful suggestions and consultation they provided to me in need.

Importantly, I am indebted to my family members, especially my grandmother for her moral guidance, mother for her economic support, father for his inspiration, and my life partner, Pabitra Acharya, for arrangement of my scheduled tasks to bring this research into shape.

May 2013

Gopikesh Acharya

Abstract

This research explores the ideas of revisiting the Homeric myth on Penelope from the perspective of contemporary 'feminist critique' of male writers' representation of females. Margaret Atwood's The Penelopiad deconstructs the Homeric myth thereby highlighting the roles, structures and space of female characters and subverting the tradition of epic genre. The narrator in this novella makes a bespoke response to Homeric epic, The Odyssey. Instead of emphasizing on the heroic and adventurous deeds of Odysseus as related in the Homeric myth, Atwood stresses on the stories of marginalized women like Penelope, 12 Maids, Helen, Anticlea and Eurycleia. In her revisionist version, Atwood represents the female characters as bold and assertive. Thus, Atwood revisits the past from the perspective of 'feminist critique' and emphasizes on the female writings as well as female identity.

Contents

Letter of Recommendation

Approval Letter

Acknowledgements

Abstract

I. Atwood's The Penelopiad as a Feminist Rewriting of Homer's The Odyssey	1-13
II. Redefining Female Existence and Identity in Atwood's The Penelopiad	14-38
III. New Identity and Experience in The Penelopiad	39-40
Works Cited	